The journal Laborativ arkeologi (Laboratory archaeology) has been published by an association of the same name together with the Archaeological Research Laboratory at Stockholm University since 1986, and in 1995 the subtitle Journal of Nordic Archaeological Science was added. Hitherto the editorial board has consisted mainly of staff at the Laboratory. Starting with this issue, the journal is adopting a new guise under the title of JONAS/Journal of Nordic Archaeological Science, now with a broader, international approach emphasising the "Nordic" aspect and a new, extended advisory board including members from the Nordic countries. All articles are peer reviewed by distinguished scientists.
